Biography of Roy Davis of Del Mar, CA

Roy Davis recently published STEAMed Off to China, which combines Roy's dual careers of engineering and writing. The book, under the pen name of E. B. Davidson, follows the adventures of a woman engineer who guides a team of Chinese engineers in solving technical, political and criminal mysteries.

Roy said, "I spent almost a year working in Asia and have many experiences to draw from to continue the Ellie Brown - STEAMed series."

 "Ellie Brown is modeled on and named after my mother who I remember directing a bulldozer driver during the construction of the local school. She managed the whole project and is the source of my engineering abilities," He went on to say.

Roy wrote the Digital Dave weekly computer advice column in ComputorEdge Magazine for 25 years, reaching a peak readership of 350,000. A compendium of Digital Dave was published in book form in four languages and garnered awards.

Roy earned a degree in Electrical Engineering with a minor in mass media, serving as an editor of the University of Wisconsin – Milwaukee newspaper. An opinion piece of his was republished in the Milwaukee Sentinel, then became the preamble of the state law it addressed.

STEAMed Off to China can be purchased in eBook, paperback and hardcover on Amazon.
